Education

M.S., Library and Information Science. University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 2008.

Ph.D., Slavic Languages and Literatures. Yale University, 2003.

A.B., magna cum laude, Russian Language and Literature. Mount Holyoke College, 1984.

Experience

The Pennsylvania State University

Co-Department Head, Publishing and Curation Services; Head, ScholarSphere User Services; and Digital Content Strategist. (From 2012.) Digital Collections Curator. (2010 – 2012.)

Jointly direct Publishing and Curation Services (PCS), implementing digital scholarship program that encompasses emergent services in publishing, data curation, and the digital humanities.

Oversee and administer department budget, manage resources, and engage in strategic and tactical planning for PCS programs, services, and initiatives. Supervise and mentor both part-time and full-time staff. Provide expertise to other programs across the Libraries and the University, such as on open access policy development and advocacy, data management, copyright and fair use, and library-based publishing. Represent Penn State and the Libraries, as called for, at national meetings and conferences on behalf of library administration.

Lead service management for ScholarSphere, Penn State's institutional repository, including front-line user support, instruction, and outreach. Participate in strategic priorities planning for Hydra/Fedora development at Penn State.

Provide active support for research data management compliance through consultations, workshops and presentations, and web-based guidance. Monitor federal mandates for sharing of research results, consulting as needed with faculty and administrators on new developments.

Contribute to, co-sponsor, initiate, or lead cross-organizational teams building out infrastructure and managing process for digital collections development and strategy; digital preservation strategy; research data services; digital humanities projects; and open access publishing.

Oversee Libraries' digital collections, serving as primary point of contact for user queries and assessment. Participate in Penn State's collaboration in the Pennsylvania Digital Collections Project for the DPLA, contributing to development of service hub governance, guidelines, and policies. Co-authored, with Digital Library Architect in ITS, extensive platform review of Libraries' technology infrastructure for digital collection content, which has informed current repository infrastructure development.

University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Project Manager, Graduate School of Library and Information Science. (2008 – 2009.)

Coordinated and managed project activities and resources for five National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program (NDIIPP) projects, funded by the Library of Congress for a total of $2.85 million (including $1.15 million for the "Preserving Virtual Worlds" project, on video game preservation).

Projects focused on development of technical architecture and semantic support for digital preservation and repository interoperability, as well as on preservation, metadata, collections, and rights issues for computer/video games and interactive fiction. Maintained and facilitated inter-institutional project communication with librarians, application developers, library and information science faculty, and research scientists. Summarized plans, discussions, and decisions project-wide. Regularly initiated and drafted project reports for funding agency. Coordinated publications for research and project awareness. Co-presented at conferences.

Graduate Assistant, Grainger Engineering Library. (2007-2008.)

Graduate Assistant, Mathematics Library. (2007 – 2008.)

Graduate Research Assistant, National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program. (2006 – 2007.)

Slavic Digital Humanities Fellow/CLIR Postdoctoral Fellow, Slavic & East European Library. (2004 – 2006.)

Managed digital projects, such as development of online inventory of Slavic and East European digital projects and digitization of twentieth-century Czech and Slovak posters; for latter, researched and sought rights permissions for reformatting the collection and making it accessible online, as well as created item-level metadata based on an agreed-upon metadata application profile. Organized workshops on text encoding for librarians specializing in Slavic & East European Studies. Developed and implemented the first program at Illinois to give multilingual tours (e.g., Chinese, Korean, Russian, Spanish, and Thai) of the Main Library. Served on the Area Studies Committee, an advisory group for subject libraries in the Area Studies Division. Provided reference assistance at Information Desk.

Bruccoli Clark Layman, Inc.

In-House Editor. (2001 – 2004.)

Reviewed and edited entries for content and in accordance with house style for volumes on Russian literature in the Dictionary of Literary Biography reference-book series, consulting as needed with the projects' outside editors (typically faculty members at academic institutions). Collaborated with copy editors, photo editors, and graphics team in preparation for publication of volumes.

University of New Haven

International Student Advisor. (1999 – 2001.)

Created and programmed events, such as the International Spring Festival, specifically designed to integrate and engage international students in the life of the campus, creating community and sense of camaraderie. Advised students on their F-1 immigration status.

Amherst College

Russian Department: Visiting Assistant Professor. (1992 – 1994.) Lecturer. (1990 – 1992.)

Taught beginning and advanced Russian language. Designed and led seminars on the works of Lev Tolstoy.
